

I think it is a disgrace that on such an important rule as broadcast ownership, the FCC has chosen to hold only 1 public hearing in 1 city. As the media is not covering the broadcast ownership issue, should not the FCC step in to report the issue to the public?

I commend Commissioners Copps and Adelstein for holding their own public hearings, hopefully not at their own expense. If Time magazine asked, I would nominate Commissioners Copps and Adelstein as Men of the Year for their honorable role in trying to further our democracy by keeping the airwaves local and diverse.

I only hope that on June 2nd, Chairman Powell thinks of the public when voting on the future of the public airwaves. For the record, I and everyone I know, am against the proposed lessening of the broadcast ownership rules.
